

Coming Home Gala Dinner: 1st November, 7:30pm

Join us for a very special evening in the magnificent Central Hall at the Natural History Museum to raise funds to provide specially adapted housing for our seriously wounded Service men and women.

This Gala Dinner in the magnificent surroundings of the Natural History Museum is to raise funds to provide specially adapted housing for our seriously wounded Service men and women who have been through a gruelling rehabilitation and are now trying, whilst facing enormous personal challenges, to rebuild their lives.

General The Lord Dannatt
GCB, CBE, MC, DL
Patron of Haig Housing Trust's
Coming Home campaign

Haig Housing Trust's fundraising campaign, Coming Home, aims to raise £20m over the next five years to provide specifically adapted homes for our heroes. It is difficult enough to leave the Services and adjust to civilian life without the additional and enormous challenges of both physical and mental disability to cope with; imagine how much harder it is if you are young, just starting out in life, perhaps married with young children, and then suddenly and traumatically disabled, and permanently so. How and where do you start?

Coming Home aims to help by providing a platform – a home – from which they can rebuild their lives. Our beneficiaries all have extraordinary stories to tell and their fortitude and resilience is remarkable. They may be wounded in body, but they are not wounded in spirit and deserve the chance to lead fulfilling lives. By supporting our Gala Dinner, you will be helping them to do that.
